Let's Start!

Your favorite ice cream says a lot about you!

Learning Outcome

Describe characteristics of different people and their jobs.

Ask your partner:

- Do you think people in the same job have the same qualities?
- What type of job needs someone who is generous? Patient? Ambitious?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about jobs and work.
- I can make and respond to requests.
- I can give and understand instructions.

Let's Explore!

Vanessa finished her first article for Cambridge Life! Would you mind* helping her make it better?

* The expression "Would you mind" is the beginning of a request. The verb that follows has -ing at the end.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Did you know that the type of ice cream you like can reflect your personality? Your choice of ice cream can even help you choose a rewarding career! Vanilla is one of the basic flavors, but people who like vanilla are actually ambitious risk-takers. Start your own business! Become an entrepreneur!

People who like strawberry ice cream are logical. Think about being a software developer. If you're also thoughtful and focused, you could be an engineer. Chocolate lovers are definitely creative, but a bit dramatic. Go to acting school, you would be great actor!

People who like chocolate chip ice cream are patient. Train to be a counsellor. Nurses also may like this flavor because they are generous.

I know this study is not very scientific, so could you help me make this article better? Would you mind completing my survey on ice cream and jobs? Could you visit my blog, Sally's Suitcase? Would you answer a few questions? Thank you very much. I really appreciate it!

Let's Practice!

Sally has some ideas about what type of person is good at what job. What does she think?

Instructions: Draw a line from the first part of the statement on the left to the second part on the right.

COLUMN A

1. They are risk-takers.
2. They are logical.
3. They are logical, thoughtful and focused.
4. They are lively and dramatic.
5. They are generous.
6. They are patient.

COLUMN B

- a. Software developers
- b. Actors
- c. Counsellors
- d. Engineers
- e. Nurses
- f. Entrepreneurs

Let's Practice!

Sally makes requests of the people who read her blog. Let's practice speaking.

Instructions: Practice reading the sentences aloud.

1. Could you help me make this article better?
2. Sure, no problem.
3. Would you mind completing my survey on ice cream and jobs?
4. It would be my pleasure.
5. Would you answer a few questions?
6. Of course, I'd be happy to.

Extension Activity

Test the results of Sally's article to see if her ideas about ice cream and jobs are correct.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Ask 5 people their favorite ice cream between these choices: vanilla, chocolate, strawberry, chocolate chip.
- Explain what type of person that makes them, based on Sally's article.
- Explain what kind of job they should have, according to Sally.
- Ask them if they think this information is true.
- Write a short paragraph to explain the results of your study.
- Read the paragraph to the class.

Learning Points

Make and Respond to Requests

It's important to be polite when you ask for something or respond to requests.

Making a Request	Responding to a Request
Can you ... ?	Sure, no problem.
Could you ... ?	It would be my pleasure.
Will you ... ?	Of course, I'd be happy to.
Would you mind ... ?

Examples:

- Could you help me make this article better?
- Would you mind completing my survey on ice cream and jobs?

Giving and Understanding Instructions

When you give instructions related to jobs and work, you can use Imperatives. Imperatives are verbs. You do not use the subject. They are often the first word in the sentence.

Examples:

- Start your own business!
- Become an entrepreneur!
- Think about being a software developer.
